Pastor Heidi's Reflections

This month I want to share excerpts from a beautiful sermon preached by Rev. Barbara Brown Taylor. She asks, "How does one give thanks when events in the greater world, and in the smaller world of one's own life, do not seem to lead one to gratitude?"

Without stretching too much, I want to suggest that Thanksgiving Day becomes Eucharist (Holy Communion) Day, a day when we are called to offer thanks to God for the whole of our lives.

That is not always an easy thing to do.

Perhaps you have seen the bumper sticker that reads, "Life is hard. Then you die." A few years ago, I drove to work in Chicago behind a car displaying that bumper sticker. Most people laughed when I told them about it, but one perceptive woman declined to laugh and asked, "Have you had a hard week?" As a matter of fact it had been a hard year.

While 2019 hasn't been an particularly hard year for me personally I think we can all say that this has been a hard year for our world. It will be difficult for some to be thankful this year. To help out I'm suggesting a practice from our ancestors in the faith.

Three thousand years ago the Jews formulated blessings — berakot—for every circumstance of their lives. Come good or bad, they had a blessing. If it were good news, then "Blessed be he who is good and does good." If it were bad news, then "Blessed be the judge of truth." As far as they were concerned, humankind has a duty to pronounce a blessing on the bad in life as well as the good, because all life came from God.

When we gather for Eucharist (Holy Communion), for thanksgiving, what we toast is the whole of our Lord's life, the defeats along with the victories, the gentle birth alongside the violent crucifixion, the sleepless night in Gethsemane alongside the empty tomb on Easter morning. Because, in retrospect, in faith, we believe that it is all a single tapestry and the removal of a single thread diminishes the whole creation.

Our opportunity this Thanksgiving is to see our own lives the same way; to learn how to give thanks at the altar not only for the mixed blessings of Christ's life but also for our own. To say "thank you" for the whole mess, the things we welcome as well as the things we risk our souls to escape.

"Thanks be to God," we say, because we believe that God is somewhere to be found in everything that happens to us. "Thanks be to God," we say, because we believe that the cords of God's love are never severed, however dark or convoluted our path through life may sometimes be.

God is God, and our lives are our lives, and we can love them or leave them, give thanks for them or whittle them away with regret. Our opportunity is to embrace all that we have ever been and done and haul it up upon the altar of grace. It is there we recognize our lives as sacraments, outward and visible signs of an inward grace.

So happy Thanksgiving! Happy Eucharist! Whether you celebrate with family and friends or dine alone, God goes with you, and there is no corner of your life that God does not inhabit. Let us be on the lookout for God, and ready with our chorus: "Thanks be to God. Alleluia. Amen."

LCS weekend food program

Food insecurity is a social and economic condition where access to food is limited or uncertain. It is a complex problem. There are now 16 children at Lafayette Charter School whose families are food insecure, and who receive weekend food items (breakfast, lunch and two snacks). FOG members are a lifeline for these children. Leave food items in the baskets at each church or in a collection bin at Citizens Bank, Lafayette.

'All Hollow's Eve' trivia

In an earlier time, instead of saying "Trick-or-treat," children would say, "A Soul Cake, a Soul Cake, have mercy on all Christian souls for a soul cake!" It is believed that a clever medieval cook wanted to make Soul Cakes designed to remind people of eternity, so she cut a hole in the middle of round cakes before frying them, thereby inventing donuts! Soul cakes!

First Lutheran will host annual 'Thanksgiving Eve' service

This year's ecumenical community Thanksgiving Service will be at First Lutheran Church on TUESDAY, November 26, at 7:00 p.m. Members of our FOG churches, as well as St. Gregory and St. George, join together for this community service. Refreshments will follow.
